So far as evidence was concerned no one would have suspected after a trip around the streets, banks, railroad offices and business houses that April 1st came this week. There was little doing in the joke line with the possible exception of a few of the stereotyped chestnuts which have done service for many years. The brick under the hat was dug up of course, and the purse with a string attached was also resurrected from its hiding place, but the original jokes were few and far between. The police department and sheriff's office, which are usually made the butt of the practical jokers on that day escaped without a single prank being played.

Remember the opening ball at the Auditorium Saturday, April 4.

There will be no more legal fishing for trout until June 15—and true sports are hoping that there will be no illegal catching of the speckled finches, either. Tuesday was the last day in which fishing for game fish can be legally done in Utah water; the season was up then. "Fish," said an old timer who has been wielding a rod from one end of the canyon to the other for years. "You ask me if there's going to be lots of trout this year. Well, I should say so. As far as I'm concerned I'll go ahead and catch the limit each day, whether there's fish or not. You know there is always a gang of these sporty fishermen who go up Logan canyon as far as they can travel. They usually start out for a day with provisions and tackle enough for a month's fishing, and with the trout they are able to buy from some kid they come back with a sufficient quantity to grease the frying pan. Then they say the river's gettin' worse. There ain't no trout in it, but you take it straight from me the trout are always there if a guy only knows how to get 'em. Of course he has to do it scientifically. Yes sir, the trout supply this season is going to be as big as ever. That tip is straight."

Details of the excursion to be run by the Oregon Short Line and Southern Pacific to San Francisco to allow Utah people an opportunity to see the big battleship fleet now engaged in target practice at Magdalena bay have been announced. The date of sale for the tickets will be May 2. Passengers will be allowed five days in which to make the trip to San Francisco, and the final return limit will be June 2. Excursionists will have their choice of routes, returning, though they will have to go to San Francisco by the Southern Pacific. Returning by the same route, the tickets will be sold for $31.50. Returning by way of Portland, tickets will be sold for $44. Returning by way of Los Angeles and the Salt Lake route, tickets will cost $37.75. At the general passenger offices of the Oregon Short Line it was stated that 18 extra Pullmans had been ordered to accommodate the traffic expected by the Southern Pacific on this occasion. Reservations, it was stated, are already being made in large numbers, and a record breaking excursion is expected.

Baugh Benefit Tonight.

At the Pavilion tonight occurs the Benefit Ball given in behalf of Frank Baugh, by the 119th quorum of elders. Mr. Baugh has had serious reverses in recent months, has a large family to support, and his quorum is trying to help him out. Few men have given more time or more pleasure to the public than has Frank Baugh, Logan's popular tenor, and it is to be hoped that the ball tonight will bring him a handsome sum. The Pavilion and services of the orchestra are donated absolutely free. Though one doesn't care to attend the ball, any contribution will be welcomed. The people speak kindly of this benefit and there's sure to be a good crowd.
